Full Spectrum Light for your Household Birds

Until the last few years, studies with reptiles showed that 20-30 minutes of direct outdoor sunlight provided better coverage than the earlier “full spectrum” artificial light sources. I have been recommending the same for birds for over 25 years.

Technology has brought us a better product: the ZooMed Avian Sun 5.0. Fitted with a conventional light bulb screw-in, the Avian Sun can be used in regular desk lamps etc. Available from pet retailers and Amazon.

My 50+ year old Yellow-Naped Amazon really seems to really like the light, which is said to be like being in the shade on a sunny day. She gets 10 hours/day, on a timer.
